3. RISKS

The risks to which an investor is exposed by investing into sub-funds of an umbrella fund depend on investment objectives and the policy of each individual sub-fund of an umbrella fund. Therefore, investors are recommended to select such a sub-fund or combination of sub-funds that the total risk of investments is still acceptable for them.

The investment value of an individual sub-fund may fluctuate in the future and there is a likely possibility that the investor might not be refunded for the whole amount paid into the individual sub-fund's investment coupons.

By making investments, an individual sub-fund is above all exposed to the following forms of risks:

Market risk is a risk of loss to the sub-fund due to changes of market value positions in the investment fund assets, which are the result of the changes of market variables such as interest rates, exchange rates, prices of equity financial instruments and commodities or changes of creditworthiness of the issuer. It is a risk, which arises from factors that include the possibility of sudden and lasting general decrease of rates in capital markets due to general market and economy conditions (systematic risk), and factors related to activities of the financial instrument issuer (unsystematic risk).

Concentration risk in a specific type of investments or at a specific market means that it increases potential risk of larger fluctuation on return and that single investments may have a great impact on profitability of the sub-fund.

Credit risk is a risk that the issuer shall not be able to settle obligations on time or in full, which arise from a security (interest in/or principal value).

Settlement risk means that there shall be no settlements with the money assets transfer or transfer of ownership on securities in expected or set deadlines, which may increase liquidity risk for a sub-fund as well as for the investor.

Custody risk means the risk that a custodian or a sub-custodian of assets of the umbrella fund cannot or does not perform its services with duly quality, diligence, safety, speed or necessary volume.

Liquidity risk is a risk when sub-fund's assets cannot be sold, realised or closed in a corresponding short period of time and within limited costs, and when a sub-fund cannot fulfil its obligations to investors with regard to redemption values of investment coupons. A sub-fund, due to the limited investments liquidity on an individual securities market, is not able to trade with these investments or may trade with them under substantially worse conditions as the ones according to which these investments were valued.

Currency risk is a risk, which is a result of the fact that sub-fund's assets might also be invested into investments whose income values from which they derive are set out in a different currency, as is the currency in which the value of sub-fund's asset unit is calculated. In case of depreciation or devaluation of these currencies, a fluctuation and negative impact on the profitability of the sub-fund's investments may occur.

Inflation risk is a risk that a real investment profitability shall be lower than expected, which means that the purchase power of savings in a sub-fund at the time of the payment (realisation) shall be lower than expected.

Interest risk - prices of bonds change with the changes of market interest rates, therefore exists a risk that a price in a portfolio shall decrease if the interest rates on the market increase. This risk is called the interest risk and is the largest risk faced by investors on the debt securities market.

Potential guarantees of third parties regarding the achievement of a certain minimum yield lower the risk, whereby the risk that these third parties shall not partially or entirely fulfil their guarantee obligation remains, and also partially depends on market and other risks, which have an impact on fulfilment of conditions for implementing guarantees to third parties, and additionally also probably lower the expected investment yield as opposed to investments where the guarantee of third parties is not present.

Risk of regulation modifications is a risk that in the Republic of Slovenia or in countries on whose capital market the sub-fund invests its assets to, comes to for a sub-fund an unpleasant regulation changes including the change of tax regulations and all types of limitations of capital flows with foreign countries, which may have a negative impact on liquidity as well as investment value on capital markets.

Risk of asset and yield reduction in case of mass realisation of sub-fund's investment coupons means that in case of mass realisation of investment coupons a sub-fund may realise its investments only at substantially worse conditions than usually, which might have a negative impact on the yield of the sub-fund, and in certain cases may also lead into temporary suspension of payments of repurchase value of investment coupons. The latter would mean additional liquidity risk for the investor to invest into the sub-fund, because the investor cannot within statutory periods and periods prescribed by management rules to pay-in and especially request or receive payments from the sub-fund.

Risks associated with investments in less developed markets

When the sub-fund investments in compliance with the investment policy are also directed into the financial instruments traded in less developed markets, or in issuers from these countries there are higher general risks with regard to political, economic (inflation and exchange rate changes), social and religious instability, and unfavourable amendments to legislation. The business operation of the participants in financial instruments market or the issuers may not be subject to supervision, which would according to the extent or substance, be equivalent to the supervision of the corresponding institutions in more developed countries. Some of these markets are not subject to accounting standards, auditing standards and financial reporting standards, and other practices comparable to the practices of more developed countries. The liquidity risk may be significantly increased due to the possibility of illiquidity of these markets. Significant delays in settlements or inability of parties to settle business transactions with financial instruments may occur; therefore, the settlement risk is also increased. Due to the possibility of problems related to the safekeeping of securities or inadequate infrastructure for these purposes, there is an additional increase in custody risk.

4. REFERENCE CURRENCY AND ACCOUNTING PERIOD

The reference currency of all sub-funds is euro (EUR).

The accounting period (period of calculating net asset values and sub-fund's unit values) is a working day as defined on the territory of the Republic of Slovenia (i.e. without Saturdays, Sundays and Holidays), from 00:00:01 hours to 24:00:00 hours. The following dates constitute an exception: 7 February, 14 August and 24 December, which are not regarded as valuation dates.

We draw the attention of all investors that the amount of actual taxation arising due to the ownership of investment coupons, redemption of the investment coupon or other facts related to the ownership of the investment coupons, depends on the tax situation of every single holder. The investor shall be advised to seek professional assistance in case of any insecurity regarding the taxation in respect of investing into the investment coupon!

The umbrella fund and sub-funds are not liable to corporate income tax, since they are not legal entities.

7.2. Taxation of investors, who are legal entities – residents

Persons liable to corporate income tax are taxable according to the ZDDPO-2. The tax rate on generated tax acknowledged profit amounts to 19%.

All investors, legal persons – residents are obligated to establish tax acknowledged profit on the grounds of income and outcome established according to the laws and accounting standards, whereby they are obliged to consider particularities as defined by ZDDPO-2. Special rules apply mainly to the changes of accounting directives, error corrections and revaluation.

7.3. Taxation of investors, who are natural persons – residents

7.3.1. Taxation in case of realisation or sale of an investment coupon or liquidation of a single sub-fund

The investment coupon of a sub-fund is according to Article 93 of the ZDoh-2 considered as capital, and thus in the event of disposal (realisation, sale) of the investment coupon or liquidation of a single sub-fund the investor shall be taxed within the applicable rules on capital gains under ZDoh-2.

For a taxable disposal of an investment coupon under Article 94 of ZDoh-2 shall be considered a realisation or sale of an investment coupon of a sub-fund and redemption of a proportional part of a liquidation estate in case of liquidation of an individual sub-fund.

For non-taxable disposals of an investment coupon under Article 95 of the ZDoh-2 are mainly considered:

- transfer of capital of a deceased person to an heir, legatee or person who shall replace them under inheritance provisions, or another person, who claims a right from the legacy due to the death of a natural person.

The tax base for determining the amount of tax shall be ascertained as a difference between the value of an investment coupon at time of disposal and the value of the investment coupon at acquisition.

The value of an investment coupon at acquisition shall be ascertained as the amount of a payment into the sub-fund reduced for the amount of entry charges (therefore number of asset units are multiplied by one unit value). In such manner, ascertained value shall then be increased for flat rate expenses in respect of investment coupon acquisition, which are acknowledged at the amount of 1% from the purchase value of the investment coupon. In case of inheritance, the purchase value of the investment coupon shall also be increased for the value of a potential inheritance and gift tax.

The value of an investment coupon at disposal is equal to the number of asset units multiplied by one unit value at redemption from the sub-fund. The value of an investment coupon at disposal shall be decreased for flat rate expenses at the amount of 1% of the value of an investment coupon at disposal.

With those investors, who obtained the sub-fund's investment coupon by swapping the investment coupon of a mutual fund obtained before 1 January 2003, then the purchase value of an investment coupon shall be considered the value as at 1 January 2006.

If the investor obtained the investment coupon prior to the introduction of Euro, the value of the investment coupon shall be calculated with the use of middle exchange rate of the Bank of Slovenia valid on the date of acquisition of the investment coupon or on 1 January 2006, when the purchase value of the coupon shall be considered according to the value on this day.

From such ascertained tax bases, the income tax shall be calculated and paid under a 25% rate from 2013 onwards. The rate of the income tax shall decrease every five years of the investment coupon holding and amounts after every completed:

- five years of investment coupon holding: 15%,
- ten years of investment coupon holding: 10%,
- fifteen years of investment coupon holding: 5%.

After twenty years of investment coupon holding, the investor shall be exempt from the payment of the income tax on capital gains.

The sub-fund investment coupons are managed according to the First in First out (FIFO) Costing Method, where the value of an investment coupon at the time of acquisition shall be considered as the value of an investment coupon that was acquired first.

For investment coupons of a sub-fund acquired with the swap for investment coupons of a mutual-fund, which incurred with the swap of shares of an authorised investment company or an investment company, which was created from an authorised investment company in a procedure of mandatory restructuring of this company into a mutual fund, or in the procedure of mandatory spin-off of part of assets of this company into a mutual fund, when the holder acquired these shares in accordance with regulations that regulate ownership restructuring of companies, it shall be considered to be acquired:

- on the day of creation of an umbrella fund if the umbrella fund incurred with the creation of existing mutual funds,
- on the day of creation of a sub-fund of an already existing umbrella fund, if the existing mutual fund shall be restructured into a sub-fund of an already existing umbrella fund,

7.3.2. Taxation in case of transition between sub-funds of the same umbrella fund

At swapping, the sub-fund's investment coupon for an investment coupon of another sub-fund of the same umbrella fund a deferral of determining the tax liability is enforced. In the part where the investment coupon is cashed-in to settle costs of transition between sub-funds, the tax liability does not incur.

In case of enforcing a deferral of determining tax liability, the latter shall be determined not until the first next taxable disposal of an investment coupon, whereby:

- the date when first swapped investment coupons are acquired shall be considered as the time of acquisition of an investment coupon, determined in accordance with the rules of the ZDoh-2,
- the purchase value of the first swapped investment coupons shall be considered as the purchase value, determined in accordance with the rules of the ZDoh-2,

At swapping the investment coupons of the merging sub-fund for the investment coupons of the receiving sub-fund performed in the course of sub-funds' merger, the taxpayer may enforce a deferral of determining the tax liability.

A deferral of determining the tax liability may also be enforced at the swap of investment coupons of existing mutual funds with the investment coupons of sub-funds of an umbrella fund performed in the course of forming an umbrella fund from the existing mutual funds and at the swapping of investment coupons of a sub-fund of an umbrella fund with investment coupons of a sub-fund of another umbrella fund, which is performed in the course of incorporating sub-funds of an umbrella fund into another umbrella fund of the same management company.

In case of enforcing a deferral of determining tax liability, the latter is determined not until the first next taxable disposal of investment coupons, whereby:

- the date when swapped investment coupons are acquired shall be considered as the time of acquisition of an investment coupon, determined in accordance with the rules of the ZDoh-2,
- the purchase value of the swapped investment coupons shall be considered as the purchase value, determined in accordance with the rules of the ZDoh-2.

For taxpayers for which in relation to swapped investment coupons exemption from income tax according to Article 528 of the ZISDU-3 applies, this exemption applies also with regard to the investment coupons acquired in the procedure of swapping investment coupons in course of sub-fund mergers, formation of an umbrella fund from existing mutual funds and incorporation of sub-funds of an umbrella fund into another umbrella fund of the same management company.

If the management company does not dispose with the data referred to in the second paragraph of this sub-point, she is obliged at the time of these swappings of such investment coupons to request proof of actual time of acquisition and purchase value or the manner of the acquisition of the first investment coupon from the holder.

The management company, which manages the receiving fund, which shall notify the taxpayers about this in writing within 15 days, shall present a deferral of determining tax liability to the Tax Administration of the Republic of Slovenia and it shall provide them with all data, with which the taxpayers need to determine their tax liabilities.

If following the redemption/transfer of the total redemption value or part of the redemption value of the investment coupon, the total number of investor's asset unit would decrease below 1 asset unit, it shall be considered that the holder requests the redemption/transfer of the investment coupon or investment coupons in full.

Redemptions of investment coupons are performed at an unknown value. If the request for redemption of an investment coupon shall be received by the cut-off time of the valuation date T, the unit value as at valuation date T shall be considered for calculation. The unit value of the valuation date T shall be published on the website www.infond.si no later than the next working day (T+1). At the request for redemption of an investment coupon, which shall be received after the cut-off time of the valuation date T, the unit value as at valuation date T+1 shall be considered for the calculation of the redemption value of the investment coupon, which shall be published on the website www.infond.si no later than the next working day (T+2).

The cut-off time for each sub-fund is defined in APPENDIX F.

Upon preliminary consent of the holder of the sub-fund's investment coupon, the redemption value of the investment coupon may also be paid out with transferrable securities from the sub-fund's assets. In this case, the redemption of the investment coupons with transferable securities may not be lower than 1% of the sub-fund's asset value or 100,000 euros, when the sub-fund's assets are lower than 10 million euros. The redemption value of the investment coupon shall be paid out in shares of transferrable securities that reflect the composition of the sub-fund's investments, and the remainder to the total redemption value of the investment coupon shall be paid out to the investment coupon holder in cash.

The deadline for redemption is no more than seven working following the end of the accounting period with all required documentation.

The management company may refuse the payment or limit the accession to those sub-funds to those categories of people, who due to their activities cause damages to the remaining investors or, whether entering into a relationship with a specific category would mean disproportionate costs for the management company. The management company may for those categories of persons that it refused the payment to, or limited the accession to the above stated categories of holders of asset units carry out a redemption of asset units.

10.2.4. Suspension of redemption of investment coupons

The suspension of redemption is possible only in the circumstances and under the conditions determined in the ATVP's decision, which defines temporary suspension of redemption of investment coupons.

The temporary suspension of redemption of sub-fund's investment coupons may also be requested by the ATVP, if it assesses that this is in the interest of investment coupon holders or in the public interest.

The temporary suspension of redemption of investment coupons may in cases defined in the ZISDU-3 also be instituted by the custodian of the umbrella fund's assets.

10.2.5. Introduction of partial redemption of investment coupons

The management company may in exceptional cases introduce a temporary partial redemption of sub-fund's investment coupons instead of a temporary suspension of investment coupons of an individual sub-fund.

The introduction of this measure is only possible in the event and under the conditions determined in the ATVP's decision that regulates temporary suspension of redemption or the introduction of a partial redemption of investment coupons. A partial redemption of sub-fund's investment coupons is based on a balance sheet delimitation of sub-fund's assets according to the liquidity criterion and it indicates that within a usual period following the filing of the request for the redemption of the redemption value of the investment coupon, the holder is paid out the redemption value in the amount corresponding to the proportionate holding of the holder in the liquid part of the sub-fund's assets. The management company shall pay out the remaining asset units, to which the investment coupon is issued, to the holder as soon as it redeems a sufficient proportion of the less liquid assets of the sub-fund.

4. the difference between the correct NAV and incorrect NAV of the fund from other categories of funds represents more than 0.5 % of the correct NAV.

The management company shall execute payment orders of insufficient redemptions within 5 working days from the day of the correct calculation of the sub-fund's unit value. Regardless of the provision from the previous paragraph, the management company needs not to execute the payment order into the sub-fund or a payment order to the holder of units and send the latter a new notice on statement of redemptions when the amount for transfer is not higher than 2 euros. The expenses arising with the connection to remedy the error shall not be chargeable to the sub-fund's assets.

In the event of a too high UV due to an error in calculating NAV, the management company:

1. calculates additional asset units and sends a new notice on settlement of payments to the holders of units, who paid the sub-fund asset units according to a too highly calculated UV;
2. transfers the difference in money to the sub-fund if holders of the unit received a too high redemption at withdrawal from the fund.

In the event of a too low UV due to an error in calculating NAV, the management company:

1. shall transfer the difference in money to the holders of units, whose redemption unit value was calculated at a too low UV at the time of withdrawal from the fund in accordance with the correctly calculated UV and sends them a new notice on settlement of redemption;

Investor's profile

The sub-fund is designed for long-term investors, who shall invest their assets for a longer period, presumably until 2040. Irrespective of the above, the investors are not obliged to stay in the fund until 2040, and may withdraw their assets at any time. Note

Achieved past investment profitability in sub-fund's investment coupons is not an indicator of its profitability in the future.

In international profitability comparisons, it is necessary to consider different tax regimes, which might influence the profitability calculation.

*TOC – total operational cost of a sub-fund (expressed in percentage from the average net asset value of a sub-fund in the previous business year).

 Since the sub-fund does not operate yet for the entire financial year, estimated operating costs are thus indicated in the table.

Note

Total operational costs of the sub-fund are chargeable to the sub-fund's assets and are not chargeable directly to the investment coupon holders. Total operational costs include all costs of a single sub-fund business operation in a specific period defined in point 6.2. of this Prospectus, except costs of payments of third parties in relation to the acquisition or disposal of the sub-fund's assets and soft commissions from APPENDIX C of this prospectus. Sub-fund's operational cost may in the future be higher or lower than the ones indicated.

The calculation of past profitability of investments into the sub-fund's investment coupons does not include entry or exit charges of the investor, and potential impact of tax liabilities, which might be chargeable to the sub-fund's investment coupon holder at the time of redemption of the investment coupon is also not taken into account.

The chronological review of so far calculated TOC's is available on the management company's website www.infond.si.

APPENDIX H: REMUNERATION POLICY OF THE MANAGEMENT COMPANY

The management company has adopted and implemented a remuneration policy, which is compliant with prudent and effective risk management. The remuneration policy sets out the rules of remuneration for the management, the supervisory board and other employees with a special nature of work. The rules specified in the remuneration policy do not encourage the assumption of risk, and are compliant with the business strategy, objectives, values and interest of the company and the risk level of the sub-funds. The management company implements the remuneration policy in such a way that the fixed and variable remunerations are balanced, and that the fixed remuneration constitutes a sufficiently high proportion of total remuneration in order to allow full flexibility of variable remuneration,

The management company has introduced the Remuneration Policy in such a way that it is proportional to the size of the management company, its internal organisation, the characteristics and the activities of the management company.

The information on the details of the remuneration policy and the persons responsible for the remuneration is available to the investors on the management company's website <https://www.infond.si/o-druzbi>.

A free copy of the remuneration policy shall be provided to the investor also in a printed form upon its written request.
